ANTHONY FLEMMING ARE

Anthony Flemming is a member of the Wapping Group of Artists. He is a good quality water colourist with convincing movement and sense of location who specialises in maritime subjects.

He graduated with a first class honours degree from Goldsmiths College, London in 1961, having studied painting, lithography, etching and design. Until taking up painting full-time in 1970 he worked as a designer on racing car projects for clients such as Jack Brabham and Bruce Maclaren.

His work has been exhibited at many galleries in the UK, including the Royal Academy, Duncan Campbell Fine Art, London; Cowes Gallery, Isle of Wight and Lincoln Joyce Gallery, Surrey. He has had two exhibitions in the U.S.A.

He has written a book entitled "Painting Boats and Harbours", which gives any amateur artist a fantastic insight into the techniques used by a professional artist.
